SCQS

Society of Construction & Quantity Surveyors

The public sector support organisation and contact point for all leading Construction / Quantity
Surveyors and Construction
Procurement Officers

What is SCQS ?

We are the contact point for all leading Construction and Quantity Surveyors and Construction Procurement professionals in the public sector. SCQS proactively supports its members through focus groups and regional meetings. We enable the interchange of good practice and the development of new initiatives to enhance the property development and management services of our members' public sector organisations.

We have over 180 full members from local authorities, government departments and other public sector organisations throughout the United Kingdom.

New members are welcome

The Society welcomes new members who are Chartered Construction Surveyors/Quantity Surveyors occupying the principal established post for construction procurement/quantity surveying functions in all public bodies, including local authorities, health trusts, housing associations, government departments and educational establishments.

Membership is also open to members of private sector organisations whose employment has been transferred from the public sector to the private sector.

Associate membership is also available to chartered quantity surveyors who are deputies to a principal post holder.
